

Community-led Development Skills Workshop

Unpacking Developmental Evaluation Applying A Principles Based Approach

Complex community issues require flexible and adaptive approaches to project design, implementation and evaluation. Developmental Evaluation (DE) offers a fresh approach to evaluating social innovation and community-led change. Using a set of guiding principles, rather than rules, DE is situational, contextual, culturally responsive and ethical.

This insightful one day workshop will be presented by two of the world's leading developmental evaluation practitioners: Kate McKegg and Nan Wehipeihana.

This workshop will help you:

- Understand DE's unique approach and underpinning paradigms, including systems thinking, resilience and indigenous philosophies
- Learn about the theory and practice behind DE – the tensions, strengths and limitations
- Decide whether a principles-based developmental evaluation is right for you
- Gather tools, tips and strategies for getting started and taking a principles based approach
