

Leading in Communities Gisborne Workshop

Looking for new insights around some challenging situations in your community work?

Community-Led Development challenges our way of thinking, acting and leading. We need leadership from lots of different people, not just from a few exceptional people we call leaders. This workshop explores approaches and tools for thinking, acting and leading in complex situations, where leadership is possible for anyone committed to continuous learning on the job.

This workshop will help you reflect on your leadership and:

- Identify what can support your own leadership development and contribution from whatever your roles in your local community, whānau, hapū, iwi, or workplace
- Identify strategies for fostering leadership of others, across diverse groups and sectors
- Apply tools and strategies for making sense of challenging leadership situations
- Apply some frameworks that help you decide how, where and if you might intervene in complex situations

When: Thursday 20th September, 9.30am – 4pm

Where: Mahutonga Room, H B Williams Library, 34 Bright Street, Gisborne 4010

Cost: $50 for non-profits and community groups & $150 for local/central government, funders, private enterprise

Lunch is provided. Workshop supported by Eastern & Central Community Trust.

Register: info@gisbornevolunteercentre.org.nz, 06 868 4522

“If you don’t think of yourself as [a] leader, this workshop empowers you to realise that everyone has strengths to bring to being a leader.”

“Taking away the fear of [leaders] needing to have all the answers.”

“Thought provoking, fun, affirming, informative, reflective.”

“Out of my comfort zone but loved it.”

About your facilitator, Margy-Jean Malcolm

Margy-Jean Malcolm's life has been informed by a community development lens since she began local neighbourhood work in the 1970s in Wellington. Her current teaching, research, voluntary and consultancy work builds on her experience in leadership, management and governance in a wide variety of not for profit sector organisations and central government policy work. Margy-Jean's involvement with Inspiring Communities has included collaborative inquiry research, contributing to our "Learning by Doing" publication, and subsequently developing the "leadership as learning" framework.
