

Leading Community-led Change

Community-led development (CLD) challenges our way of thinking, acting and leading. We need leadership from lots of different people, not just from a few exceptional people we call leaders. This workshop explores approaches and tools for thinking, acting and leading in complex situations, where leadership is possible for anyone committed to continuous learning on the job.

In this workshop you will:

- Recognise your leadership strengths as an active citizen in your community.
- Identify strategies for growing the leadership of a diversity of people.
- Explore tools and strategies to make sense of challenging leadership situations.
- Apply frameworks that help you decide how, where and if you might act in complex situations.

This workshop is facilitated by Margy Jean Malcolm.

When: September 10th 2019, 9:30am – 4pm

Where: St Andrews, 30 The Terrace, Wellington

Cost: $69 +GST for non-profits and community groups & $195 +GST for local/central government, funders, private enterprise

“You fed us ideas beautifully”.

“I loved how you empowered the collective's knowledge.”

“It challenges perspectives for organisations in regards to how important it is to engage with the community. We think we are, but are we?”

“A positive, gentle reminder of what is possible.”

About your facilitator, Margy Jean Malcolm

Margy Jean Malcolm's life has been informed by a community development lens since she began local neighbourhood work in the 1970s in Wellington. Her current teaching, research, voluntary and consultancy work builds on her experience in leadership, management and governance in a wide variety of not for profit sector organisations and central government policy work. Margy-Jean's involvement with Inspiring Communities has included collaborative inquiry research, contributing to our "Learning by Doing" publication, and subsequently developing the "leadership as learning" framework.
